

NCEA Review and Maintenance Programme – 2026 updates

Review and maintenance work has been undertaken for all three levels of NZC NCEA for 2026. This pdf document contains the updated assessment materials for Cook Islands Māori Level 3. In January 2026 the NCEA website will be updated with these changes for Level 1, and the pdf version will be removed as it will no longer be necessary. For Levels 2 and 3, assessment materials will be updated on TKI in January. For external assessment specifications, refer to the NZQA website.

Conditions of Assessment

General Information

Subject Reference	Cook Islands Māori
Domain	Cook Islands Māori
Level	3

Conditions of Assessment

These Conditions provide guidelines for assessment against internally assessed Achievement Standards. Guidance is provided on:

- specific requirements for all assessments against this Standard
- appropriate ways of, and conditions for, gathering evidence
- ensuring that evidence is authentic.

Assessors must be familiar with guidance on assessment practice in learning centres, including enforcing timeframes and deadlines. The NZQA website offers resources that would be useful to read in conjunction with these Conditions of Assessment.

The learning centre's Assessment Policy and Conditions of Assessment must be consistent with NZQA's Assessment Rules for Schools with Consent to Assess. This link includes guidance for managing internal moderation and the collection of evidence.

Unmodified extracts from any external source should not be included without acknowledgement of sources and will not be considered for the final achievement judgement.

Gathering Evidence

Internal assessment provides considerable flexibility in the collection of evidence. Evidence can be collected in different ways to suit a range of teaching and learning styles, and a range of contexts of teaching and learning. Care needs to be taken to allow students opportunities to present their best evidence against the Standard(s) that are free from unnecessary constraints.

It is recommended that the design of assessment reflects and reinforces the ways students have been learning. Collection of evidence for the internally assessed Standards could include, but is not restricted to, an extended task, an investigation, digital evidence (such as recorded interviews, blogs, photographs, or film), or a portfolio of evidence.

Effective assessment should suit the nature of the learning being assessed, provide opportunities to meet the diverse needs of all students, and be valid and fair.

Ensuring Authenticity of Evidence

Authenticity of student evidence needs to be assured regardless of the method of collecting evidence. This must be in line with the learning centre's policy and NZQA's Assessment Rules for Schools with Consent to Assess.

Ensure that the student's evidence is individually identifiable and represents the student's own work. The evidence must be an accurate reflection of what the student independently knows and can do, according to the Standard being assessed. This includes evidence submitted as part of a group assessment, evidence produced outside of class time or without assessor supervision, and evidence produced with any use of generative artificial intelligence tools (GenAI). GenAI use should be carefully considered in the context of the Standard being assessed and its Conditions of Assessment, discussed with students before the assessment, and its use must be acknowledged. For example, an investigation carried out over several sessions could include:

- teacher guidance on the nature and extent of acceptable GenAI use, if any
- assessor observations and conversations
- meeting with the student at set milestones or checkpoints
- the student's record of progress, such as photographic entries or any GenAI prompts used.

Specific Information for Individual Internal Achievement Standards

Achievement Standard Number	3.2
Title	Give a clear spoken presentation in Cook Islands Māori that communicates a critical response to stimulus material
Number of Credits	3
Version	1

This achievement standard involves explaining and justifying a viewpoint in culturally appropriate spoken Cook Islands Māori.

Sufficiency of Evidence

Provided the evidence given meets the communicative purpose(s) of the task(s), the length of the evidence may vary however at all times, quality is more important than length.

It is suggested that the presentation be approximately 2-3 minutes.

Where a presentation is made by a group, each person will be assessed individually.

Use of pre-existing phrases is not sufficient to meet the requirements of the Standard.

Collection of Evidence

Video is a suitable way of collecting evidence.

Prompts

Communication is the focus of the assessment. The presentation may be supported by prepared notes, cue cards, props, other supporting material, a copy of the text, but not read verbatim and in its entirety.

Aids to memory such as those suggested above should not detract from the presentation.

Authenticity

The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate the Cook Islands Māori content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be submitted as part of the student's work.

Teachers must closely supervise the process of evidence collection to ensure that students:

- do not copy from another person or source without appropriate acknowledgement and significant modification using their own words
- do not receive guidance, scaffolding, instruction, or assistance from anyone before submission.

Teacher Support

In this standard, an assessment event refers to the period when students actively produce language as evidence toward meeting the standard, following the introduction of its requirements. This includes activities such as individually drafting and refining the script, practising the delivery of the presentation, and recording it for final submission, all of which are part of the assessment event. Teacher involvement during and outside the assessment event is limited to ensure the authenticity of student evidence and to support student understanding of the requirements of the standard.

- During the assessment event, teacher support is limited to providing students with advice on the technical aspects of their work only, for example, audio or visual quality. Teachers must not provide any input into the student's language production. This includes the drafting stage and the delivery of the presentation. Teachers are encouraged to use checkpoints throughout the assessment event to monitor student progress and ensure authenticity of evidence.
- Outside of the assessment event, teachers will cover various topics and provide feedback on students' language use in coursework and homework. This must be separate from the work produced for assessment evidence. Teachers may also support students' understanding of the standard and the achievement criteria.

Presentation

This standard assesses the student's ability to present to an audience. The audience will be determined by the purpose of the presentation e.g. a YouTube clip, a speech competition, a podcast to an exchange school.

Achievement Standard Number	3.3
Title	Interact clearly using spoken Cook Islands Māori to explore and justify varied ideas and perspectives in different situations
Number of Credits	6
Version	1

This achievement standard involves finding out about, evaluating, accounting for and sustaining own views, and giving explanations or evidence to support or challenge the ideas and perspectives of others.

Sufficiency of Evidence

A range of interactions involves at least two interactions.

Tasks should provide opportunities for students to demonstrate language use across a range of contexts and for a range of purposes, and enable achievement at all levels. Provided the evidence given meets the communicative purpose(s) of the task(s), the length of the evidence may vary however at all times, quality is more important than length.

Four to five minutes is a suggested guideline for appropriate length.

Where an interaction involves more than one person being assessed, each person will be assessed individually.

In interactions, there is a level of spontaneity not apparent in prepared oral presentations. Features of interactions which contribute to natural communication include such things as:

- referring back to things that have already been said
- clarifying
- negotiating meaning
- using colloquial and formulaic expressions appropriate for the contexts.

Collection of Evidence

Evidence of at least one interaction should be collected by video recording.

Authenticity

The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate the Cook Islands Māori content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be used throughout the assessment.

Teachers must closely supervise the process of evidence collection to ensure that students:

- do not practise the exact task with their partner(s) prior to the assessment
- do not rote-learn or script role plays
- do not use Cook Islands Māori notes, language learning resources, or dictionaries during the interactions.

Teacher Support

In this standard, an assessment event refers to the period when students actively produce language as evidence toward meeting the standard at each assessment opportunity, following the introduction of its requirements. This includes activities such as individually brainstorming possible questions and answers, recording conversations, and selecting evidence for final submission, all of which are part of the assessment event. Teacher involvement during and outside these events is limited to ensure the authenticity of student evidence and to support student understanding of the requirements of the standard.

- During assessment events, teacher support is limited to providing students with advice on the technical aspects of their work only, for example, audio or visual quality. Teachers must not provide any input into the student's language production or feedback on the selection of evidence for final submission. Teachers are encouraged to use checkpoints throughout the assessment events to monitor student progress and ensure authenticity of evidence.
- Outside assessment events, teachers will cover various topics and provide feedback on students' language use in coursework and homework. This must be separate from the work produced for assessment evidence. Teachers may also support students' understanding of the standard and the achievement criteria.

Achievement Standard Number	3.5
Title	Write a variety of text types in clear Cook Islands Māori to explore and justify varied ideas and perspectives
Number of Credits	5
Version	1

This achievement standard involves accounting for and sustaining own views and finding out about, evaluating and giving explanations or evidence to support or challenge the ideas and perspectives of others.

Evidence

A range of commonly used resources may be used to support drafting and reworking. These include word lists, dictionaries, text books, or grammar notes. Students need to write texts to fulfil communicative intents that are as realistic as possible.

Sufficiency of Evidence

A variety of texts involves at least two pieces of writing.

Tasks should provide opportunities for students to demonstrate language in different contexts and for a range of purposes, and enable achievement at all levels. Provided the evidence meets the communicative purpose(s) of the task(s), the length of the evidence may vary however at all times, quality is more important than length.

500 words, 900 ja, 900 kana, or 500 Chinese characters is a suggested guideline for this standard.

Use of pre-existing phrases is not sufficient to meet the requirements of the Standard.

Collection of Evidence

Evidence of at least two text types should be collected. This ensures that the assessor has sufficient evidence to attest that a student is working at the specified level reasonably consistently rather than accidentally and occasionally. Selection of evidence would be made by the student. The final selection is considered as a whole for grade allocation.

Authenticity

The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate the Cook Islands Māori content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be submitted as part of the student's work.

Teachers must closely supervise the process of evidence collection to ensure that students:

- do not copy from another person or source without appropriate acknowledgement and significant modification using their own words
- do not receive guidance, scaffolding, instruction, or assistance from anyone before submission.

Teacher Support

In this standard, an assessment event refers to the period when students actively produce language as evidence toward meeting the standard at each assessment opportunity, following the introduction of its requirements. This includes activities such as individually drafting and refining the writing, as well as selecting evidence for final submission, all of which are part of the assessment event. Teacher involvement during and outside these events is limited to ensure the authenticity of student evidence and to support student understanding of the requirements of the standard.

- During assessment events, teacher support is limited to providing students with advice on the technical aspects of their work only, for example, formatting or design. Teachers must not provide any input into the student's language production or feedback on the selection of evidence for final submission. Teachers are encouraged to use checkpoints throughout the assessment events to monitor student progress and ensure authenticity of evidence.

- Outside assessment events, teachers will cover various topics and provide feedback on students' language use in coursework and homework. This must be separate from the work produced for assessment evidence. Teachers may also support students' understanding of the standard and the achievement criteria.

Authenticity of evidence

Teachers must manage authenticity for any assessment from a public source, because students may have access to the assessment schedule or student exemplar material.

Using this assessment resource without modification may mean that students' work is not authentic. The teacher may need to change figures, measurements or data sources or set a different context or topic to be investigated or a different text to read or perform.

Teacher guidelines

The following guidelines are supplied to enable teachers to carry out valid and consistent assessment using this internal assessment resource.

Teachers need to be very familiar with the outcome being assessed by Achievement Standard Languages 91539. The achievement criteria and the explanatory notes contain information, definitions, and requirements that are crucial when interpreting the Standard and assessing students against it.

Context/setting

This standard assesses the student's ability to speak to an audience and has effective communication as its focus.

This activity requires students to select a cultural practice or trend from the stimulus material related to the Cook Islands culture that they would like their classmates to experience. They then give a clear spoken presentation, in which they communicate a critical response to the stimulus material.

The stimulus material could be a video clip, an article, or a text from a book.

The cultural practice or trend could be, for example, street soccer, having Wednesday afternoons off, no uniforms, cram schools, festivals, celebrations of national days, or the importance of church and religion.

Choose stimulus material and suggest cultural aspects that will engage your students' interests and that offers plenty of scope for students to engage with ideas in ways that are expected at level 8 of the NZ Curriculum.

Students can further research their chosen cultural practice or trend using additional resources. It is recommended that they keep a research log, record any search prompts they use, and acknowledge all sources of information.

This resource material should be read in conjunction with the Senior Secondary Teaching and Learning Guides for languages: <http://seniorsecondary.tki.org.nz/>.

Conditions

In all cases, teachers should refer closely to each relevant standard, including the Explanatory Notes and the Conditions of Assessment:

<https://ncea.tki.org.nz/Resources-for-internally-assessed-achievement-standards/Learning-languages/Te-Reo-Maori-Kuki-Airani/Level-3-Cook-Islands-Maori>.

As part of regular teaching and learning, students will be provided with opportunities to explain and justify viewpoints in culturally appropriate spoken Cook Islands Māori.

When students are actively producing language for assessment, teachers can only help with technical aspects (e.g. audio and visual quality). You must not assist with language production, presentation delivery, or evidence selection. Checkpoints can be used to monitor progress and ensure authenticity

Presentations will be video recorded for assessment purposes. They should be about 2 to 3 minutes in length, but quality is more important than quantity.

Students may work alone, in pairs, or in a group. Where two or more students construct and perform a presentation together, each must have a significant role in both the creation and presentation so that there is sufficient evidence for assessment of individual performance.

When delivering their presentations, students may have prepared notes, cue cards, props, other supporting material, or a copy of the text with them, but they may not read directly from their notes. To do so will mean they have not met the standard.

Students need to be made aware of the success criteria and of the level and complexity of language required at level 8 of the NZ Curriculum. Feedback and feed-forward on classwork and homework is also part of normal classroom practice and gives a clear indication to students of the level at which they are working. However, this support must be kept separate from the assessed work.

Authenticity

For further information, see Authenticity - NZQA.

The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate the Cook Islands Māori content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be submitted as part of the student's work.

Teachers must closely supervise the process of evidence collection to ensure that students:

- do not copy from another person or source without appropriate acknowledgement and significant modification, using their own words
- do not receive guidance, scaffolding, instruction, or assistance from anyone before submission.

Resource requirements

Video is a suitable form of collecting evidence.

A range of resources to support drafting the script could include word lists, dictionaries, textbooks, or grammar notes.

Student instructions

Introduction

This activity requires you to prepare and give a clear spoken presentation in which you explain a cultural practice or trend and explain, with reasons, why you believe it would be beneficial for your classmates to experience it.

Teacher note: You will need to add information about the stimulus material the students will be using. You will also need to let them know how their presentations will be recorded and stored.

You may work in pairs or in groups for your initial preparation and brainstorming. But you will give your presentation and be assessed individually.

You can use prepared notes, cue cards, props, photos, and other supporting material but you must not read directly from your notes. If you read directly from your notes, you will not meet the standard.

Your presentation must be your own work. The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be submitted as part of your work.

You may not:

- copy from another person or source without appropriate acknowledgement and significant modification, using your own words
- receive guidance, scaffolding, instruction, or assistance from anyone before submission
- receive guidance, scaffolding, instruction, assistance, or assessment conditions beyond what is specified as permissible in the Conditions of Assessment

- use the language samples from the assessment schedule in your own work without substantial modification.

You will need to video record your presentation for assessment and moderation purposes.

The suggested length for your presentation is about two to three minutes. However, quality is more important than quantity.

You will be assessed on how effectively you communicate a critical response to the cultural practice/trend.

When delivering your presentation you may have prepared notes, cue cards, props, other supporting material, or a copy of the text with you, but you may not read directly from your notes. To do so will mean you have not met the standard.

You have [specify number] periods in class to prepare your presentation.

Teacher note: Confirm how much class time your students will have to prepare their presentations. Insert the dates for all checkpoints and the final submission here.

Task

Prepare and give a spoken presentation in Cook Islands Māori in which you explain a Cook Islands Māori cultural practice/trend and explain, with reasons, why you believe it would be beneficial for your classmates to experience it.

The practice/trend will be selected from stimulus material.

Your presentation must be more than just a description of the practice/trend: “a critical response” will include analysis, interpretation, or evaluation.

Whether you are expressing your own viewpoint or supporting or challenging the ideas or opinions of others, explain and justify your thinking.

In your presentation, you could include, for example:

- a description of the cultural practice/trend (who, when, where, what)
- your first impressions and/or reactions upon learning about this practice/trend
- the reasons why this practice/trend appeals to you
- the benefits of this practice/trend for your classmates
- the origin and/or significance of the practice/trend in the Cook Islands
- how the practice/trend differs from what you are used to at home
- what impact (for example, change of point of view, a change of appreciation, belief, values) learning about this practice/trend has had on you
- a prediction as to how your classmates might react to the practice/trend: challenge preconceptions, prejudice, stereotyping
- how you would introduce the practice/trend to your classmates
- specifics from the stimulus material and other related texts or images, or anecdotal evidence.

The above suggestions are just some of the ways in which you could communicate a critical response to the cultural activity. In your presentation, you may want to comment on different aspects and in different ways.

In your presentation, aim to:

- give a balanced view of the cultural aspect
- structure your argument logically and effectively to inform the audience and persuade them to accept your position
- use a range of language and language features that are fit for the purpose of the presentation and the audience
- minimise inconsistencies (for example, in vocabulary, expressions, sentence structures, pronunciation, intonation, rhythm patterns, delivery speed, audibility, stress, and tones) that could hinder communication.
- use gestures and body language as appropriate in Cook Islands Māori.

Teacher guidelines

The following guidelines are supplied to enable teachers to carry out valid and consistent assessment using this internal assessment resource.

Teachers need to be very familiar with the outcome being assessed by the achievement standard. The achievement criteria and the explanatory notes contain information, definitions, and requirements that are crucial when interpreting the standard and assessing students against it.

Context/setting

This assessment requires students to interact clearly using spoken Cook Islands Māori to explore and justify varied ideas and perspectives in different situations.

Interactions may be between students (one-to-one, or in a small group), with you (teacher), or with a native speaker. Discuss with students when making decisions about participants or media (for example, whether the interaction is face-to-face or using communication technology).

The students collect evidence of (record) these interactions and submit for assessment a minimum of two that they consider best showcase their skills. Their personal contribution to the interactions should total about 4-5 minutes, but quality is more important than quantity.

The interactions can be kept together in an electronic portfolio. You and your students may decide to keep learning logs to go with the selection of interactions, but this is entirely up to you.

Overall judgement will be made from the total evidence collected, showing that the student is working at a level “consciously and reasonably” consistently rather than “accidentally and occasionally”.

Scenarios for four interactions are suggested. Students select a minimum of two.

If your students do not have ready access to authentic experiences or material, adapt this resource to include contexts that are more relevant. The scenarios used should reflect the interests of your students. For example, if it is more relevant, include a discussion around something the students would like to watch on a social media instead of selecting a film.

This task could be used in conjunction with Achievement Standard 91540 Write a variety of text types in clear Cook Island Māori to explore and justify varied ideas and perspectives. In other words, students could be assessed for their interactive speaking and their writing using the same learning context. If this is done, ensure that the students are not achieving double credits for simply reusing the same ideas and language.

This resource material should be read in conjunction with the Senior Secondary Teaching and Learning Guides for languages: <http://seniorsecondary.tki.org.nz/>.

Conditions

In all cases, teachers should refer closely to each relevant standard, including the Explanatory Notes and the Conditions of Assessment: Level 3 Cook Islands Māori / Te Reo Māori Kūki 'Āirani / Learning languages / Resources for internally assessed achievement standards / NCEA on TKI - NCEA.

As part of regular teaching and learning, students will be provided with opportunities to interact in unrehearsed and unscripted spoken interactions that involve a degree of spontaneity, across a range of appropriate situations.

Although some interactions will be in pairs or groups, each student's work must be assessed individually.

When students are actively producing language for assessment (including individually preparing possible questions and answers, and recording interactions) teachers can only help with technical aspects (e.g. audio and visual quality). You must not assist with language production or evidence selection. Checkpoints can be used to monitor progress and ensure authenticity.

All interactions are required to be video recorded. The recording of the interactions must be of good enough quality to ensure that all participants can be heard clearly. It must be stored in a safe and accessible location.

Students will be assessed on their contribution during and ability to maintain the interaction. Their range of language in the interactions is shown through their ability to use a range of appropriate language and conversational strategies to share and justify information, ideas, and opinions in different situations and maintain and sustain the interaction. Perfect use of grammar structures is not the primary focus.

Students need to be made aware of the success criteria and of the level and complexity of language required at level 8 of the NZ Curriculum. Feedback and feed-forward on classwork and homework is also part of normal classroom practice and gives a clear indication to students of the level at which they are working.

Authenticity

For further information, see Authenticity - NZQA.

The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate Cook Island Māori content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be used throughout the assessment.

Teachers must closely supervise the process of evidence collection to ensure that students:

- do not practise the exact task with their partner(s) prior to the assessment
- do not rote-learn or script role plays
- do not use Cook Island Māori notes, language learning resources, or dictionaries during the interactions.

Resource requirements

Video recording equipment.

The interactions must be video recorded for marking and moderation purposes. Recordings must be safely stored and of good enough quality for all participants to be heard and distinguished clearly.

Additional information

Judgement

You will need to consider all pieces submitted for assessment to make an overall judgement. Each piece will not be marked separately, but considered in terms of how it contributes to the overall picture of evidence of achievement for the student.

All interactions must be unrehearsed and unscripted, to indicate a degree of spontaneity. A series of learnt interviews or role-plays is not appropriate.

Student instructions

Introduction

This assessment activity requires you to take part in and video record a minimum of two interactions in Cook Islands Māori. Four possible scenarios are provided.

In your interactions, you should:

- express, explore, and justify (with explanations or evidence) your own ideas and perspectives
- explore and support/challenge (with explanations or evidence) the ideas and perspectives of others
- use language and language features that are fit for purpose and audience.

You will be assessed on how effectively you use spoken Cook Islands Māori to explore and justify varied ideas and perspectives.

Conditions

Your teacher will give you dates for your interactions and instructions on how the recordings should be stored.

You will be assessed individually.

It is suggested that your interactions total about four to five minutes, but quality is more important than quantity.

You may not use cue cards or count a pre-learnt role-play or dialogue as an interaction, but you may use materials that are authentic and appropriate to the context (for example, a map or an image).

All work must be your own. The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate the Cook Islands Māori content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be used throughout the assessment.

You may not:

- practise the exact task with your partner(s) prior to the assessment
- rote-learn or script role plays

- use Cook Islands Māori notes, language learning resources, or dictionaries during the interactions
- use any language from the language samples in the assessment schedule unless it has been significantly reworked.

As this Standard assesses interaction, the language you use should fit naturally into the discussion.

Interactions will take place throughout the year, during or at the conclusion of a relevant programme of work.

Teacher note: Confirm how much class time your students will have to individually prepare for each interaction and to record their conversation with their partner(s). Insert the dates for all checkpoints and the final submission here.

Task

Select a minimum of two of the following scenarios for your interactions. The bulleted points are suggestions only and should not limit your ideas.

Teacher note: For each scenario, assign (or consult with students about) suitable pairs, groups, and media (for example, face-to-face or using technology).

What's on next week?

You belong to a Cook Islands Māori film club. Each week, students can choose a film in Cook Islands Māori or about Cook Islands culture to view and then to discuss. You and other members of the club are having a discussion about which film to choose for next week.

You could consider the following in your discussion:

- the genre of film that you each would like to watch and what benefits you will get from seeing it
- previous films you have seen that made an impression on you
- if it is in Cook Islands Māori, whether the language is pitched at a level that most of your classmates can understand
- whether the movie is appropriate for school
- how to convince your teacher that this film would be advantageous for your learning.

You could carry out this task as part of a group discussion, with your teacher and another student, with a native speaker and another student, or through the use of social networking tools such as Skype.

You could change the context to a book club and talk about a book you wish to read

Help us celebrate!

Your school is running an event to celebrate Languages Week. Your language class has been given the task of organising activities to celebrate the Cook Islands culture. Make a phone call to a Cook Islands community group or business negotiating their support at the event. You could consider the following:

- explaining the purpose of the celebration
- negotiating the possibility of sponsorship, food sale, and/or performances

- negotiating resources that might be needed
- discussing the benefits to the school and wider community.

A helping hand

Members of a sporting team from one of the Cook Islands will be billeted in your town (village) for an international competition. Your language class wants to show support for the team and make their stay here welcoming. A representative from the team has come into class to talk with you and share ideas. You discuss ways to do this, for example, through offering a translation 'hotline', offering financial aid if needed, messages of support, and other initiatives. You could consider the following:

- the reasons to be involved
- the ways to be involved
- what initiatives your local community might already have in place
- your roles and responsibilities as global citizens.

What's up?

You are involved in peer support and are called to the dean's office to help an exchange student from the Cook Islands who is having issues with one of their teachers. You will need to find out what the problem is and then you could consider discussing the following:

- the possibility that differences between school life in the Cook Islands and New Zealand may differ and may have led to a miscommunication
- the cultural expectations from both parties may be different, for example, making eye contact when talking
- concerns around language knowledge
- advice for him/her to better enjoy life here at your school and how to better get on with that teacher.

In your interactions, aim to:

- speak clearly, so that your meaning is understood
- demonstrate a degree of fluency and spontaneity (that is maintain and sustain interactions without previous rehearsal)
- use appropriate interactive strategies such as fillers, asking unprepared questions and discussing interesting details, interrupting, recognising cues, prompting, thanking, repeating, inviting agreement or disagreement, seeking clarification
- make appropriate use of cultural conventions such as courtesies and gestures.

As far as possible, avoid inconsistencies that might hinder communication (for example, inconsistencies in language features, pronunciation, intonation, rhythm patterns, delivery speed or audibility, stress patterns, or tones).

Authenticity of evidence

Teachers must manage authenticity for any assessment from a public source, because students may have access to the assessment schedule or student exemplar material.

Using this assessment resource without modification may mean that students' work is not authentic. The teacher may need to change figures, measurements or data sources or set a different context or topic to be investigated or a different text to read or perform.

Teacher guidelines

The following guidelines are supplied to enable teachers to carry out valid and consistent assessment using this internal assessment resource.

Teachers need to be very familiar with the outcome being assessed by the achievement standard. The achievement criteria and the explanatory notes contain information, definitions, and requirements that are crucial when interpreting the standard and assessing students against it.

Context/setting

This assessment requires students to imagine their Cook Islands Māori class is establishing a virtual classroom on the school intranet and to produce a minimum of two written texts for this intranet site.

This resource provides four scenarios, from which students select a minimum of two. Adapt or replace any of the suggested scenarios that are not appropriate or sufficiently real for your students.

This assessment activity could be used in conjunction with assessment for Achievement Standard 91540 Interact clearly using spoken Cook Islands Māori to explore and justify varied ideas and perspectives in different situations. In other words, students could be assessed for their interactive speaking and their writing using the same learning context. If this is done, ensure that the students are not achieving double credit for simply reusing the same ideas and language.

This resource material should be read in conjunction with:

- the Senior Secondary Teaching and Learning Guides for languages: <http://seniorsecondary.tki.org.nz/>
- the NCEA Level 3 writing clarification documents for Cook Islands Māori (available on the NZQA website).

Conditions

In all cases, teachers should refer closely to each relevant standard, including the Explanatory Notes and the Conditions of Assessment: Level 3 Cook Islands Māori / Te Reo Māori Kūki 'Āirani / Learning languages / Resources for internally assessed achievement standards / NCEA on TKI - NCEA.

As part of regular teaching and learning, students write a variety of texts, both “free” (spontaneous) and “controlled” (prepared). Students need sufficient opportunity to write a range of texts for a range of purposes.

When students are actively producing language for assessment, teachers can only help with technical aspects (e.g. formatting). You must not assist with language production or evidence selection. Checkpoints can be used to monitor progress and ensure authenticity.

Although stages of writing include brainstorming, outlining, drafting, revising, and proof reading, only the final text is required as evidence (though students could be asked to keep earlier drafts in case authenticity needs to be established).

Texts may be presented in electronic form or hand-written.

A system needs to be devised for collating evidence for final submission. This could include manila folders, document wallets, clear files, or digital storage.

Students select a minimum of two texts from their collection of written texts and submit these for assessment. This selection must demonstrate language use across a range of contexts and for a range of purposes.

500 words, 900 ja, 900 kana, or 500 Chinese characters is a suggested guideline for this standard.

You will consider all pieces submitted before making a holistic judgement. Each piece will not be assessed separately, but considered inasmuch as it contributes to the whole portfolio. Overall judgement will be made from the total evidence collected, showing that the student is working at a level “consciously and reasonably consistently” rather than “accidentally and occasionally”.

Students need to be made aware of the success criteria and of the level and complexity of language required at level 8 of the NZ Curriculum. Feedback and feed-forward on classwork and homework is also part of normal classroom practice and gives a clear indication to students of the level at which they are working. After students complete their first assessed piece, you may help them understand how their work aligns with the success criteria. However, this support must use only the exact wording from the standard or the sample assessment schedule on TKI. Students may be provided with up to four hours of class time to select and refine their initial and subsequent drafts before final submission.

At all times quality is more important than quantity.

Authenticity

For further information, see Authenticity - NZQA.

The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate the Cook Islands Māori content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be submitted as part of the student’s work. Teachers must closely supervise the process of evidence collection to ensure that students:

- do not copy from another person or source without appropriate acknowledgement and significant modification, using their own words
- do not receive guidance, scaffolding, instruction, or assistance from anyone before submission.

Resource requirements

A range of resources to support drafting and reworking could include word lists, dictionaries, textbooks, or grammar notes.

Student instructions

Introduction

Imagine that your Cook Islands Māori class is establishing a virtual classroom on the school intranet. You are required to write a minimum of two texts in Cook Islands Māori for this virtual classroom.

Write in a format and style that is linguistically and culturally appropriate. Ensure that the content is informed, well organised, and fit for the purpose and audience.

All work must be your own. The use of chatbots, generative AI, paraphrasing tools, spell checkers, or other tools that can automatically generate content is not permitted and material generated by these tools should not be submitted as part of your work. You may not:

- copy from another person or source without appropriate acknowledgement and significant modification using your own words
- receive guidance, scaffolding, instruction, or assistance from anyone before submission
- use the language samples from the assessment schedule in your own work without substantial modification.

There is no word limit but it is recommended that, across the texts, you write a total of about 400–500 words. Quality is however more important than quantity.

You may draft and revise your writing. You may use resources such as word lists, dictionaries, textbooks, or grammar notes to help you. But you may not ask someone else to proofread or correct your writing. Only your final versions will be assessed.

You will be assessed on how effectively you use Cook Islands Māori to explore and justify a variety of ideas and perspectives in your pieces of writing.

The writing will take place throughout the year, during or at the conclusion of a relevant programme of work.

Teacher note: Confirm how much class time your students will have to prepare and refine their drafts before final submission. Specify how drafts will be stored to ensure authenticity. Insert the dates for all checkpoints and the final submission here.

Task

Write a minimum of two texts in Cook Islands Māori, suitable for posting on your class's (imaginary) virtual classroom pages on the school intranet.

In your writing, you should:

- express, explore, and justify (with explanations or evidence) your own ideas and perspectives
- explore and support/challenge (with explanations or evidence) the ideas and perspectives of others
- use language and language features that are fit for purpose and audience
- include some ideas and information from sources other than your own direct experience (for example, articles, films, or discussions with native speakers).

Choose a minimum of two of the four following scenarios as the basis for your written texts. The bullet points are suggestions only and should not limit your ideas.

Use your language and cultural knowledge to organise each text so that it is appropriate for the purpose and audience.

Film review

You belong to a Cook Islands Māori film club. Each week you view and discuss with the other members a Cook Islands Māori film or a film about the Cook Islands Māori culture. This week you have watched a film you feel particularly strongly about. Write a review and post it on your Cook Islands Māori intranet class webpage.

In your review, you could:

- discuss one or more aspects of this film (for example, themes, the development of characters, film techniques) in detail
- express your personal response to this film
- include other views on this film
- give this film a rating out of five stars and justify your rating
- give recommendations to Cook Islands Māori students on whether the film is worth viewing, and justify your recommendations.

You could change the context of this task to a book review.

Celebrating Languages Week

Your school has held an event to celebrate Languages Week. Write an article about this event in Cook Islands Māori and post it on your Cook Islands Māori intranet class webpage.

In your article, you could:

- give general information about the event (for example, what the event was, when and where it took place, who was involved)
- explain the purpose of the event and the benefits it has brought to the school
- describe what activities were available with specific reference to the involvement of your Cook Islands Māori class (for example, food stalls, performances, and/or other cultural activities)
- evaluate the success of the event

- give advice to your school or Cook Islands Māori class for improvements for future events and explain why your ideas would be improvements.

A helping hand

A natural disaster or humanitarian issue has affected one of the Cook Islands. Prepare a letter suitable for emailing to or posting on a class blog addressed to the students at your sister school in one of the Cook Islands, expressing your concern and asking what you could do to help. Post your letter on your Cook Islands Māori intranet class webpage for peer review.

In your letter, you could:

- express sympathy and condolences if appropriate
- ask what initiatives the Cook Islands and/or your sister school have already undertaken and how you could be involved in their projects
- explain the ideas your Cook Islands Māori class has come up with and ask if they are appropriate
- find out what other forms of support and assistance are needed.

Life in one of the Cook Islands or New Zealand

The students in your class have been asked to produce short Cook Islands Māori articles for the international section of the school website, exploring life for young people in one of the Cook Islands or New Zealand. Post your article on your Cook Islands Māori intranet class webpage for peer review.

In your article, you could:

- describe and explain some of the cultural practices that the students may experience, for example,
 - New Zealand - eating a hāngi, the cultural significance of greenstone, visiting a marae, the silver fern, the All Blacks, pot luck dinners, jandals, possible similarities and differences in teenage life in New Zealand and in one of the Cook Islands
 - Cook Islands – the importance of the church, a traditional ceremony, a common food dish, island attire, possible similarities and differences in teenage life in one of the Cook Islands and New Zealand
- describe and explain leisure activities and opportunities for socialising
- provide tips on fitting in with New Zealanders or Cook Islanders of the same age
- include experiences, ideas, and opinions from other Cook Islands Māori students who have lived in another Cook Island or New Zealand.

Across the texts, aim to:

- write clearly, so that you communicate your intended meaning
- use language in a way that is controlled and integrated
- make appropriate use of New Zealand Curriculum level 8 communication skills, language, and cultural knowledge.

As far as possible, avoid inconsistencies that might hinder communication (for example, inconsistencies in format, spelling, lexical choice, level of formality, language conventions, or language features).
